Click Computers takes on K-MAC Sports in ‘Partnership for the Community’

(Georgetown, TX) – Click Computers of Georgetown announced today a partnership with K-MAC Sports Productions of Austin.

K-MAC Sports is an online broadcast company co-owned by Chuck Licata and Kevin McAdams (both of whom also work for Clear Channel Communications radio stations in Austin) that broadcast most of the playoff run of the Georgetown High School baseball team this past spring. K-MAC Sports is slated to broadcast high school football for Liberty Hill, Leander and Round Rock ISDs this coming fall.

“We’re proud to join with K-MAC Sports,” stated Click Computers Founding Partner Rob Hipp. “After discussions with Chuck and Kevin, we feel K-MAC Sports is a business looking to make contributions to Central Texas high schools and businesses alike. We really like the fact they work with high school booster clubs in helping them raise much-needed funds for their efforts.”

“We’re excited about working with the Rob and the great staff of Click Computers,” Licata said. “They’ve grown so much in such a very short time that we are convinced they’re going to be a successful business for years to come. Click Computers is not looking to just make money – Click Computers is working to integrate itself into, and become part of, its community. That’s the kind of relationship we hope to develop because we expect to be around for a long time.”

Licata added, “We’re still hearing about our Georgetown High School baseball playoff broadcasts from this spring and people are still listening to those replays. We hope to work with everyone in the Georgetown community to enhance everything that’s going on there now – we’re not looking to overtake anyone or come in and be a dominant force. There’s a lot we can do and there’s a lot we can give back to the high school and surrounding community.”

K-MAC Sports broadcasts high school football, basketball, softball and baseball and has partnered with Orangebloods.com for its college football broadcasts. K-MAC Sports is involved in racing at all levels, including NASCAR weekends at Texas Motor Speedway as well as its weekly dirt show (DTI). K-MAC Sports will also broadcast a Wednesday night Texas high school sports show. All shows on K-MAC Sports are available for replay at the web site, www.kmacsports.com.
